To my father
The editor would like to give special thanks to Hugh Rawson, my former editor at New American Library for almost twenty years, who initiated this project and guided me through many others over the years. Thanks are also due to Sarah Manges, who ably picked up this project from Hugh and has been of great help to me in its completion. Thanks to my long-suffering wife, Patricia Morehead, composer and oboist, who put up with my endless hours at the computer. And finally, I would like to acknowledge the hard work of my late father and mother, Albert H. Morehead and Loy Morehead, who together were responsible for the original work on which this volume is based.
HOW TO USE THIS THESAURUS

PETER MARK ROGET was an English physician who was born in 1779 and who died in 1869. As a hobby he liked to make lists of words and group them together when they were related to one another. Some were related because they were synonyms, such as illegal and unlawful; some because they were antonyms, such as peaceful and warlike; some because they were reminders of one another, such as father and mother. Altogether Mr. Roget made a thousand different groups, or categories, of related words. Every word he knew or could find in the dictionaries he had was classified in one or more of these categories. In 1852, Mr. Roget’s list of words was published. He called the book a thesaurus, or treasury, of words. There were not many words in the first Roget’s Thesaurus compared to the number in a volume like this, but his book was the first collection of synonyms, antonyms, and other related words. Not only writers, but also many others found it invaluable. Dozens of editors, beginning with Mr. Roget’s son, have revised the original Thesaurus, added to it, and brought it up to date (for many of the words in the original Roget list are now obsolete and many common words of today were unknown in his time); but virtually every edition is still called Roget’s Thesaurus in honor of the man who first had the idea.

This edition of Roget’s Thesaurus is both a dictionary of synonyms and a thesaurus, or “treasury,” of related words. It combines in one easy-to-use alphabetical list categories (very much like those in Roget’s original thesaurus) and a list of words with their close synonyms. For clarity, each category is printed the full width of the page and set off in a box while the synonym listings are printed at half-page width.

To find synonyms for a word, first look up the word in the alphabetical list. In most cases, you will find what you are looking for immediately under that word. Reference to more synonyms is indicated by words printed in SMALL CAPITALS. If you look up the word or words referred to, you will find additional synonyms and other words related to the word you were looking up. Most references are to categories, where you will also find words of related meaning but different parts of speech. Antonyms are listed for many synonym entries, and at the end of each category entry you will find references to sources for antonyms.

A special feature of this edition is the inclusion of many phrases and quotations, both contemporary and historical, appropriate to a certain category.

Frequently only one form of a word is entered in the alphabetical word list. You will find synonyms for the other forms by referring to the entries printed in SMALL CAPITALS under the listed word. For example, to find synonyms for approximate, look under proximity in the alphabetical word list and refer to the category NEARNESS, where you find adjacent, adjoining and other related adjectives.
How to Use This Thesaurus

A word or phrase in parentheses—( )—is explanatory or shows how the preceding word is to be used in a sentence. Brackets—[ ]—indicate that the bracketed letters, word, or phrase might or might not be used with the adjoining word, depending on the preference of the writer.

In the listings, synonyms for different senses of the listed word are separated by semicolons (;). Informal and slang senses of the entry word are labeled informal or slang at the beginning of each sense; informal and slang synonyms for all senses of the entry word are listed separately, headed by Informal or Slang, respectively. Moreover, entry words or individual synonyms might be labeled to indicates special or substandard usage. The most commonly used labels—in addition to informal and slang—are dial. (dialectal), Brit. (British), poetic, and archaic.

In the category entries, numbered senses are often preceded by a contextual gist label in parentheses and italics that indicates the meaning being covered in that paragraph. These labels can help you find the right word more quickly.

Familiar dictionary abbreviations are used for parts of speech: n., noun; v., verb; v.i., intransitive verb; v.t., transitive verb; adj., adjective; adv., adverb; pron., pronoun; prep., preposition; conj., conjunction; interj., interjection.

This is not a dictionary. It does not define words except to the extent that they are defined in their synonyms. A word that has no natural synonyms is not entered merely to define it. Moreover, alternate spellings for a word are generally not given. The publishers of this thesaurus also publish a companion volume, The New American Webster Handy College Dictionary, which was the authority for the preferred spellings used herein and in which may be found definitions of most of the words in this book.

Antonyms formed by simply adding un-, in-, dis-, etc., are generally not given, nor are words listed when they are simple negatives of other words. For example, such a word as unloved is not entered because one may merely look up the positive term, but unbearable is entered because the positive term has various dissimilar meanings.

The editor appreciates readers’ suggestions for additions to the word list, phrases, and quotations, and any other comments. Comments and suggestions can be sent to the editor by e-mail at pmorehead@philsbooks.com.

ELECTRICITY

An entity of nature with positive and negative parts

Nouns—1, electricity, electric[al] power; electromagnetism, electromotion; electrical engineering, ELECTRONICS, magnetics; electrolysis.

2, electric current, alternating current, AC, direct current, DC; open or closed circuit; electrical circuit or field; electric charge, positive or negative charge, live circuit; positive or negative charge or polarity, north or south pole, magnetic pole; resistance, reluctance, reactance, impedance, conductance, conduction, capacitance; electromotive force, potential, high or low tension; electric POWER, hydroelectric power, nuclear power.

3, (electric measurements) amperage, wattage, voltage; ampere, watt, angstrom, volt; ohm, mho, coulomb, maxwell, henry, farad, faraday, fresnel, gauss, gilbert, hertz, oersted, tesla, weber; electric meter, voltmeter, ammeter, galvanometer, spectrometer.

4, electric storage, [storage] battery, [dry or wet] cell, accumulator; capacitor; atomic, electronic, mercury, nickel-cadmium, solar, voltaic, or alkaline battery; alternator, amplifier, armature, attenuator, ballast, bridge, capacitor, circuit breaker, commutator, condenser, conductor, converter, depolarizer, dynamo, electrical cord, extension cord, fuse, generator, ground, insulator, inverter, laser, maser, motor, oscillator, patchbay, patchcord, phasor, potentiometer, power supply, rectifier, regulator, relay, resistor, resonator, rheostat, rotor, solenoid, switch, transducer, transformer, transmitter.

5, electrician, line[s]man; electrical engineer.

6, power failure, blackout, brownout.

7, power station; nuclear, coal-fired, or oil-fired plant, hydroelectric plant; power grid.

Verbs—electrify, charge; shock; generate [electricity]; transform, step up or down; plug in; switch on or off; short[-circuit].

Adjectives—electric, electrical, photoelectric; hydroelectric; electromotive; solar-powered, battery-powered; [electro]magnetic; charged, live, hot; high- or low-tension; positive, negative; diamagnetic, dielectric, electrostatic.

electrify, v.t. galvanize, magnetize, charge; excite, thrill, stimulate, animate; stun, bewilder, startle. See POWER, ELECTRICITY, WONDER, EXCITEMENT.

See KILLING, PUNISHMENT.
electrode, n. terminal; anode, cathode; conductor. See POWER.

ELECTRONICS
Science of electrons

Nouns—1, electronics, electron physics, electronic engineering, solid-state electronics; musical instrument digital interface, MIDI; electron theory of atoms or solids; superconductivity; nuclear or particle physics, atomic science, quantum mechanics; atomic energy (see POWER); atomic bomb (see ARMS). See ELECTRICITY.

2, molecule, radical; atom, isobar, isotope; nucleus, nuclear particle, nucleon, proton, neutron, electron; subatomic particle, [up, down, strange, charm, bottom or top] quark, baryon, alpha or beta particle, flavor, graviton, hadron, hyperon, kaon, lepton, muon, neutrino, photon, positron, tachyon, tardyon, tauon, zino; valence; electron ray or beam, cathode or anode ray.

3, amplifier, electron or vacuum tube, cathode-ray tube, CRT; semiconductor, solid-state device, transistor, thermistor; base, collector, emitter; printed circuit, microcircuit, microchip, integrated circuit, IC, diode; conductance, resistance, impedance; photoelectric cell, photocell, electric eye, photosensitive device; cryotron; electronic circuit, logic gate, flip-flop circuit.

4, a. nuclear fission or fusion, fission or fusion reaction; atom-smashing or -splitting, thermonuclear reaction, chain reaction; cold fusion; bombardment. b. nuclear accelerator, linear or induction accelerator, betatron, elegance  [ 268 ]  elevation

1, cosmotron, cyclotron, Van de Graaff generator. c. nuclear reactor, CANDU reactor, breeder [reactor]; pile, core, rods. d. nuclear fuel, fissionable or fusible material.
2, electronic appliance, computer (see computers), radio, television (see communication); scanner, [tele]copier, sequencer.
3, nuclear reactor, core, pile, rods. d. nuclear fuel, fissionable or fusionable material.

Verbs—atomize, bombard, cleave, split; or smash the atom, fuse.
Adjectives—electronic, anodic, cathodic, solid-state, transistorized, photoelectric; superconductive; atomic, nuclear, subatomic, subnuclear, thermonuclear.
